THINGS TO KNOW

SAM NEWHOUSE, REPORTER

Bill Cosby's fall from grace was completed Tuesday after the former "America's Dad," revealed in recent years to be a serial molester who drugged and assaulted dozens of women, was sentenced to three to 10 years in jail and deemed a "sexually violent predator" in relation to a 2004 sexual assault and immediately remanded into the custody of the Sheriff's Department. While Cosby supporters bashed the verdict, it was a moment of vindication for victim Andrea Constand and the more than 60 women who have accused Cosby of sexual misconduct. WELCOME TO
METRO BOSTONTRUMP CALLS KAVANAUGH
ALLEGATIONS A 'CON GAME'

President Donald Trump, fighting to shore up his nomination of Brett Kavanaugh to the U.S. Supreme Court in a divided Senate, on Tuesday called sexual-misconduct allegations against the judge "a con game being played by the Democrats." Trump's escalation in his rhetoric defending Kavanaugh came as the Republican-led Senate Judiciary Committee announced the hiring of a woman lawyer who is "an expert sex crimes prosecutor" to question one of the nominee's accusers, Christine Blasey Ford, at a high-stakes hearing scheduled for Thursday. In a break from convention, this outside lawyer, whose name was not released, will question Ford and Kavanaugh on behalf of the committee's Republican senators, 11 white men. Typically, senators do the questioning themselves. The Senate, led by Trump's fellow Republicans, plans to move forward quickly with a confirmation vote. Senator John Cornyn, the No. 2 Senate Republican, told Fox News the committee could vote on Kavanaugh as soon as Friday, with a confirmation vote in the full Senate as early as Tuesday.

GOOGLE TO ACKNOWLEDGE
PRIVACY MISTAKES

Leading internet search engine Google will acknowledge that it has made "mistakes" on privacy issues in testimony an executive of the Alphabet Inc. unit will deliver to a U.S. Senate committee on Wednesday, according to a document reviewed by Reuters. "We acknowledge that we have made mistakes in the past, from which we have learned, and improved our robust privacy program," Google Chief Privacy Officer Keith Enright will say in written testimony before the Senate Commerce Committee. Google will testify alongside AT&T Inc., Amazon.com Inc., Apple Inc., and other companies amid growing concerns about data privacy. Google's written testimony did not identify specific prior mistakes but the company has come under fire for privacy issues. In 2012, Google agreed to pay a then-record $22.5 million civil penalty to settle Federal Trade Commission charges that it misrepresented to Apple Safari internet browser users that it would not place tracking "cookies" or serve them targeted ads.

TRUMP PRAISES KIM BUT SAYS SANCTIONS MUST STAY

President Donald Trump praised North Korea's leader Kim Jong Un on Tuesday for his courage in taking steps to disarm, but said much work still had to be done and sanctions must remain in place on North Korea until it denuclearizes.

"The missiles and rockets are no longer flying in every direction, nuclear testing has stopped, some military facilities are already being dismantled," Trump said in his speech to the annual United Nations General Assembly.

EX-NSA SENTENCED FOR EXPOSING SECRETS

A former U.S. National Security Agency employee was sentenced in a federal court in Baltimore on Tuesday to 5½ years in prison, after pleading guilty last December to illegally taking classified information outside the spy agency, the U.S. Justice Department said. Nghia Hoang Pho, 68, of Ellicott City, Maryland, removed documents that contained classified national defense information and kept them at his home without authorization, the department said in a statement. Pho will also be required to undergo three years of supervised release after completing his prison sentence. Pho worked in the NSA's elite hacking unit and he removed what prosecutors described as "massive troves" of highly classified documents containing top-secret national defense information between 2010 and March 2015. A U.S. intelligence official previously has said on the condition of anonymity that Pho was the same NSA employee who had been identified in media reports for using Kaspersky Lab antivirus software on his home computer.

MARILYN MONROE'S 1956
ROADSTER UP FOR AUCTION

A two-seater convertible car owned by Marilyn Monroe is going up for auction in November and could fetch up to $500,000, organizers said on Tuesday. The 1956 raven-black Ford Thunderbird, owned by the movie star for six years until shortly before her death in 1962, is being auctioned for the first time. Monroe, one of the most collectible celebrities, was pictured driving in the car with her husband, playwright Arthur Miller, shortly after their June 1956 wedding. Darren Julien, president of Julien's Auctions, said the car was "not only part of automotive history but comes with an aura of glamor, romance and tragedy of a true Hollywood legend." Monroe gifted the Thunderbird to the son of her acting coach, Lee Strasberg, in 1962. The current owner, who wishes to remain anonymous, tracked the vehicle down through registration and other documents that were sold in 2016 as part of Strasberg's estate. The car has undergone restoration but retains many original parts. "Finding this car, a classic two-seater model, after 56 plus years of its unknown whereabouts, was a singular event, the current owner said in a statement.

Peek inside the Satanic Temple headquarters in Salem, now reopened to the public

After extensive renovations, you'll once again be able to visit the Satanic Temple headquarters in Salem.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Have you ever wanted to see inside a Satanic Temple? If you live near Salem, you're in luck.

On Monday, the Satanic Temple officially reopened its international headquarters in Salem to the public.

The Satanic Temple says its mission is to "encourage benevolence and empathy among all people, reject tyrannical authority, advocate practical common sense and justice and be directed by the human conscience to undertake noble pursuits guided by the individual will."

The organization, which does not worship Satan, has made headlines for opposing the Westboro Baptist Church, supporting Planned Parenthood and pushing for "equal representation" in religious monuments on public property.

The headquarters have undergone renovations, explained Lex Corey, manager of the Salem Art Gallery, like having the floor reinforced so that it could withstand the weight of the eight-and-a-half-foot-tall bronze statue of Baphomet, the goat-headed pagan god. (The statue weighs 1½ tons.) The Salem spot is now open to the public, just in time for Halloween.

If you plan to visit, here's what awaits. Inside the headquarters is the Salem Art Gallery, which features the Baphomet statue, constructed by artist Mark Porter. Also at the Salem Art Gallery will be a show of artist Rebecca Petrie's work. The exhibit, called "Moon Magic," runs from Sept. 24 to Dec. 21 and explores "the sinister vein of the illumination of the night and colors seen beyond black," per the Temple.

Aside from that exhibit, guests visiting the Satanic Temple will get to see the veteran's memorial monument created by artist Adam Volpe.

"This monument has the distinction of being the first satanic sculpture in American history ever to be approved for display on public property," the temple said in a statement. "The statue was to be installed in Belle Plaine, Minn., but approval was rescinded and that is now the subject of a pending legal battle."

The art gallery will host events as well, like the Black Mass ritual, an "unbaptism" ritual, and "The Devil's Dinner Party," a ritual-based fine-dining experience hosted by the Satanic Chef, Adam Dodge.

When asked about what the Black Mass ritual includes, Corey said that it's "kind of a mystery."

"We had one last year and that was an amazing turnout. I was fortunate enough to be in the room when it was going on, and it was an absolutely beautiful performance," he said. "In general, it's a perversion of a Catholic high mass, inverted. Certain words are changed and there's no small degree of blasphemy, of course."

While a trip to Salem may not be feasible for everyone, Corey noted, he hopes those who do make the trek have a good time. He said people so far have loved it.

"It's a place where people can see beauty," he said, as well as "things that are little bit more adjacent to our campaigns, as far as lectures and events go."

If you're ready to see those sights, here's when the Satanic Temple headquarters, located at 64 Bridge St. in Salem, will be open to the public: Sunday through Thursday, 1-8 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, noon-8 p.m.; and Oct. 26-31, 11 a.m.-11 p.m.

Boston City Council to consider moving Hempfest off Boston Common

Hempfest, a.k.a. the Boston Freedom Rally, is drawing complaints from those who live around Boston Common, but the organizers say they are unwarranted.

kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Boston City Council will explore the idea of moving the Freedom Rally, also known as Hempfest, off of Boston Common, according to a hearing order.

Councilors Josh Zakim and Ed Flynn filed the order for a hearing on the issue ahead of this week's Boston City Council meeting.

The Boston Freedom Rally is an annual event on Boston Common organized by the Massachusetts Cannabis Reform Coalition (MassCann).

Grassroots Institute member Paul Martinage from New Hampshire exhales a sigh of relief. DEREK NOUYOUMMAN

Though the event has been a popular pro-marijuana celebration for many over the years, not everyone is a fan.

"The Boston Common hosts many permitted events throughout the year, but Hempfest is an event that regularly draws complaints from surrounding neighbors and visitors to the area," the councilors wrote in their hearing order. The order states that the Council will hold a hearing to "further examine what action the city can take to mitigate the event and explore options to move it."

Per the councilors, these complaints allege "illegal activities and permit violations" at Hempfest 2018, which ran from Sept. 15 to 17. "This included reports of parked cars on the green space, camping in the park and leaving trash, including used needles, in the park after the event," the order detailed.

Maggie

Kinsella,

spokeswoman for MassCann, disputed the idea that the used needles were associated with Hempfest.

"We are disappointed that any association was made between needles on the Common during a cannabis event," she said. "It is a false statement as there are needles on the Boston Common every single day of the year."

Kinsella said that the organization has dealt with people trying to shut down the Freedom Rally "yearly."

"It does not get any less frustrating as a volunteer organization that puts on this event to gather the community and culture for people to learn about and understand cannabis," she said.

The Friends of the Public Garden took issue with the Freedom Rally this past summer, with members alleging that the fest has frustrated those who live around the Common.

'America's Dad' Cosby sentenced to 3 to 10 years in prison

The disgraced entertainer was deemed a "sexually violent predator" by Judge Steven T. O'Neill.

sam.newhouse@metro.us

After a tumultuous legal battle, Bill Cosby was sentenced to state prison time on Tuesday for sexually assaulting Andrea Constand at his Cheltenham mansion in 2004, and was immediately remanded to custody.

Montgomery County Court of Common Pleas Judge Steven T. O'Neill handed down a three- to 10-year sentence after a two-day-long sentencing hearing at which he deemed Cosby, formerly considered "America's Dad" as star of "The Cosby Show," a "sexually violent predator."

"It's been 34 months since the complaint was brought. ... It is time for justice. The day has come. The time has come," O'Neill said in handing down the sentence. "No one is above the law. No one should be treated disproportionately because of who they are, where they live or even their wealth, celebrity or philanthropy."

O'Neill refused to grant Cosby bail or allow him to remain free on house arrest pending appeal, and instead ordered him to be immediately remanded to state custody, despite defense lawyers raising last-minute objections and appeals regarding evidence in Cosby's case. After a final break to review the law, O'Neill rejected defense arguments and ordered Cosby into custody.

With his hands and feet shackled, holding a thin cane, Cosby was escorted out a back door of the courtroom and driven away in a black sport utility vehicle.

A booking photo of Bill Cosby released after he is sentenced to three to 10 years in prison and immediately remanded. PROVIDED Cosby will first be detained in Eagleville at the Montgomery County Correctional Center, according to prosecutors. He will then be officially transferred into Pennsylvania Department of Correction custody at the State Correctional Institution in Phoenixville, the newest state prison, and from there the final state prison of his incarceration will be determined.

Montco DA Kevin Steele had argued for Cosby to get five to 10 years in prison, on the basis of the fact that Cosby used his celebrity to prey on women and had never shown remorse or apologized for his crimes.

At a press conference

after the sentence was handed down, he rejected questions that Cosby as an African-American may have been treated unfairly by the system.

"This is no different than any other case. ... We simply follow the case where the evidence takes us and it doesn't matter who they are," Steele said. "When Judge [Eduardo] Robreno released the deposition and said that 'this is perhaps criminal,' we're obligated to look at that, and we did."

Defense lawyer Joseph Green contended at the hearing that Cosby is a frail old man at age 81 and now legally blind, and deserved leniency, possibly house arrest.

But O'Neill sided with prosecutors, sentencing Cosby to three to 10 years in prison.

Cosby casually removed his watch and suit jacket while waiting to be placed in custody, before he was cuffed and escorted out.

"Mr. Cosby is doing great and Mr. Cosby knows that God is looking over him, and he knows that these are lies. They persecuted Jesus, and look what happened. Not saying Mr. Cosby is Jesus, but we know what this country has done to black men for centuries," Andrew Wyatt, Cosby's personal assistant and spokesman through his criminal trials, told media after Cosby was escorted into custody. "So Mr. Cosby is doing fine, he's holding up well, and anyone who wants to say anything negative, you're a joke as well, so thank you very much."

Judge Steven T. O'Neill

Also on Tuesday, Cosby was officially deemed a "sexually violent predator" by Judge O'Neill after two psychologists testified about his mental state.

Dr. Tim Foley testified that Cosby was unlikely to re-offend, saying few sex offenders commit new crimes after the age of 70. But O'Neill sided with a state psychologist, Dr. Kristen Dudley, who said that Cosby has a "mental abnormality," which she called a "paraphilic disorder," specifically, that he is attracted to "non-consenting women."

Cosby was also ordered to pay $25,000.

Some 60 women have accused Cosby of sexual assault over the past few decades, but he has only faced criminal charges in the Constand case.

Constand and her family also spoke on Monday at the hearing.

"Your honor, I have testified," Constand said in her statement. "I have given you my victim impact statement. The jury heard me. Mr. Cosby heard me. All I am asking for is justice as the court sees fit."

On Tuesday, prosecutors released a six-page written statement from Constand, in which she detailed the severe impact that followed her assault by Cosby.

"To truly understand the impact that sexual assault has had on my life, you have to understand the person that I was before it happened," Constand wrote. "When the sexual assault happened, I was a young woman brimming with confidence and looking forward to a future bright with possibilities. Now, almost 15 years later, I'm a middle-aged woman who's been stuck in a holding pattern for most of her adult life, unable to heal fully or to move forward."

Constand was a high school and college basketball star and played pro in Italy before taking a job at Temple as a director of operations for the women's basketball team. Assaulted by Cosby just before leaving her job at Temple, Constand wrote that back home in Canada, she experienced worse and worse psychological issues before reporting the molestation to police, one year after it happened.

"The nightmares started. I dreamed that another woman was being assaulted right in front of me and it was all my fault. ... I became more and more anxious that what had happened to me was going to happen to someone else. I grew terrified that it might already be too late, that the sexual assaults were continuing because I didn't speak out," Constand wrote, adding that reporting to police and the ensuing counterattacks by Cosby and his legal team led to "insurmountable stress and anxiety, which I still experience today."

"Now, more than 60 women have self-identified as sexual assault victims of Bill Cosby," she wrote. "We may never know the full extent of his double life as a sexual predator, but his decades-long reign of terror as a serial rapist is over."

20 years of 'Law and Order: Special Victims Unit'

The stars of the long-running show reflect on how it brought the #MeToo conversation to the water-cooler.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Dick Wolf might have superpowers. The creator of the cultural institution "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" has been pointing the spotlight on sexually based crimes well before the #MeToo movement gained the visibility that it has today.

This year will mark "Law and Order SVU" season 20, and the show has only gained more relevance as the narrative around sexual assault.

Metro had the chance to speak with some of the stars of the show at the Tribeca TV Festival ahead of the show's premiere on Thursday September 29th.

Giving a voice to survivors

In a panel in front of hundreds of die-hard fans, no speaker received nearly the same reaction as Mariska Hargitay, who plays the uncompromising Det. Olivia Benson. When addressing her, creator Dick Wolf addressed her as the "grandmother of the #MeToo movement" for her continued work with her own charity, The Joyful Heart Foundation, as well as in reference to how her character has been a guardian angel for the survivors of sexual trauma on the show.

"I feel so grateful that we have brought something that has been traditionally swept under the carpet," said Hargitay.

"Something that has left survivors in shame and isolation — profound shame and profound isolation. I'm so grateful that this show has brought this to the water-cooler. Brought this conversation into the public arena in a way that has been profound, and I've done a lot of healing. Being able to tell these stories has been nothing short of a privilege and a gift."

The effortlessly cool Ice-T believes the show will do what it has always done when it comes to highlighting these issues as it continues.

"We are always dealing for women's rights and different people who are doing the wrong thing — using their power to get over and stuff like that," he says. "But I don't know if we can actually turn that up? I just think we need to keep doing what we're doing. ... We're at the mercy of the script. You have to remember: I'm just an actor. So, people say, 'Well you should do this!' I'm like 'I can't say a word they don't put in my mouth!' So you gotta give that all to the writers. You've gotta give that all to the creators and the people behind the scenes writing these stories. We just get to act them out."

Other than Mariska Hargitay, Ice-T is the show's elder statesmen having joined in the second season as his beloved character, Fin Tutuola, for what was supposed to be a four-episode arc. He's been with the show since. So what keeps him inspired after all of these years?

"I don't know if I'm passionate or inspired.

It's just, I'm an actor," say Ice. "I got on the show to do four episodes and it turned into 20 years. It's fun to come to work. Everybody on the show is nice. The working environment is cool. People love the show. So when I'm out in the streets people love me because — they love me because I'm on the show. That'll inspire you!"

"I mean, think about it if you were on a show and everyone hates you. You'd be like 'Man, I don't know how long I wanna do this.' So the energy behind the show is so good. I'm an entertainer, so I'm just inspired to work. I'm just happy to have a job. How many actors are gonna get a ride for 20 years?"

"You find out also that this show is a little bit more than just entertainment — it's therapy for a lot of people. It's another layer where people walk up to you and say, 'Thank you.' Not just, 'I like the show'; they say 'Thank you.' You realize you're not only entertaining them but you're helping them. So that's a good vibe, too."

A new face will join "Law and Order SVU" season 20: Philip Winchester will be playing district attorney Peter Stone. This character originally appeared on Dick Wolf's Chicago law procedural, "Chicago Justice."

So what was it like joining such a well-oiled machine that has set such a high standard for the genre?

"Initially it was terrifying because there is so much history that you don't want to come in and be the blemish on it. But Mariska, Dick Wolf, Ice, Peter Kelly — they all welcomed me with open arms. And my first episode was with Sam Waterston. So with all of that history coming from the legal side, it made it as accessible to me as possible. The writers gave me amazing material to work with so I could lean on that when my fear was getting the best of me. It really helped."

But right away, Winchester knew that "Law and Order SVU" would not shy away from the painful and uncomfortable topics of the day. That's just not what "SVU" does.

"In this first episode," Winchester says, "we talk about the definition of masculinity and where that comes from, why it comes from bad places a lot of the times, and why it's coming from the places it's coming from in this episode."

"That's a really interesting place to start out. Because it's a different side of the #MeToo movement. When this show started, you couldn't talk about the things we are talking about. ... But what it's doing — because of Mariska and because of the writing — is giving victims and survivors a platform and it's giving them courage. It's an incredible show to be a part of."

"Law and Order SVU" season 20 will premiere with a special two-hour episode Thursday, Sept. 27 on NBC at 9 p.m.

'Empire' is back for a fifth season of power moves

The latest season of Fox's popular drama gambles big on a time jump.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

"Empire," the popular Fox drama co-starring Taraji P. Henson and Terrence Howard, left audiences hanging with its season-four finale in May.

Of course, while fans merely had to wait four months for the season-five premiere, which airs Wednesday at 9 p.m., Cookie, Lucious and company had to wait a whopping two years. That's because the "Empire" writers decided to jump the narrative ahead by two years.

Much of the drama had to do with the contentious events of the season-four finale, which saw Cookie trade the company for Lucious' freedom, and their subsequent marriage. Meanwhile, their son Jamal moved away to escape the family, and a shootout threatened the lives of Bella, Tiana, Blake and Hakeem.

Even more, however, concerned the fact that midway through its fourth season, "Empire" found itself in need of a new showrunner. Ilene Chaiken initially ran the series, but stepped down midway through season four to focus on other projects, leaving Lee Daniels and Danny Strong's creation without a leader. Brett Mahoney stepped in on an interim basis, but with Fox's decision to renew "Empire" for a fifth season, he decided to stick with it for at least another year.

In a statement released at the time of the show's renewal, Michael Thorn, Fox's president of entertainment, said: "We are so proud of our amazing cast, led by Terrence and Taraji, who deliver powerful performances week after week." He also thanked the series' "tremendous creative team — Lee, Danny, Brett, Ilene, Sanaa, Brian and Francie — whose inspired storytelling continues to create the unforgettable, jaw-dropping OMG moments that have always been signature to" the show.

So despite the many onscreen dramas experienced (and perpetrated) by Cookie, Lucious and the rest of the Lyons, the behind-the-scenes happenings at "Empire" were nowhere near as problematic. It was simply a matter of changing hands, and one that, depending on how audiences receive Wednesday's season five premiere, may bode well for the show going forward.

Seeing as how Forest Whitaker is back as Eddie Barker, who took over the Empire company at the end of season four, it's a good bet that season five will be just fine. Per the official logline for the premiere, "Steal From the Thief," the Lyons are now "completely dispersed and coping in their own ways after experiencing unimaginable tragedies." Their problems notwithstanding, however, it seems Cookie has set her sights on a new rap prodigy named Treasure, played by guest star Kaitlynn Simone.

"Empire" season 5 premieres Wednesday night at 8 p.m. on Fox.

3 Pumpkin recipes even the hardest PSL haters will love

It's officially autumn! The change of seasons can mean only one thing—it's time to fill up on pumpkin-flavored everything. Whether you are a fan of pumpkin spice (and everything nice) or can kindly pass on the flavorful squash, one thing is certain: The internet is crazy for pumpkin. It's OK to hate on the pumpkin spice latte (on the down-low) but still want to enjoy a festival of pumpkin flavors this time of year. We have a few pumpkin recipes that will make even the hardest PSL critics wanting more. KATELYN CHEF

BUKHARA FARRO PILAF

From "Simply Vibrant" by Anya Kasso © 2018 by Anya Kasso. Reprinted in arrangement with Roost Books, an imprint of Shambhala Publications, Inc. Try to imagine this scene: It's a chilly Friday evening and you're heading out to the big football game. Before venturing into the autumn evening, fill your bowl (and belly) with a warm serving bukhara farro pilaf—a seasonal blend of pumpkin, turmeric, onions, and raisins steamed with farro (or rice). Serves six.

RECIPE:

- 1 ½ cups farro or rice-soaked for 8-12 hours in 4 cups of purified water
- 3 tablespoons neutral coconut oil or ghee, or a mix of both
- 1 tablespoon cumin seeds
- 3 large yellow onions, thinly sliced
- Large pinch plus ½ tablespoon sea salt, divided
- 1 tablespoon turmeric
- Freshly ground black pepper, to taste
- 3 medium carrots, thinly julienned
- ½ cup raisins
- Small handful barberries

(optional)

- Small pinch of saffron (optional)
- 1 small pumpkin or other winter squash, peeled, seeded and cut into ½-inch cubes
- 1 tablespoon sea salt

1. Warm the oil in a large, heavy-bottomed pot (cast iron Dutch oven is ideal) over medium heat. Add cumin and stir around for a minute, until fragrant.
2. Add onions, large pinch of salt and turmeric black pepper and sauté until slightly golden, for 7-10 minutes. Pour 1 cup filtered water over the onions. Add the carrots, scattering them in a single layer. Bring water to a simmer, lower heat to low, and cook, covered, for about 7 minutes or until carrots are soft. Meanwhile, boil 2 cups of watering a small pot or tea pot and keep hot for the next step.

3. Increase the heat to medium. Scatter raisins, barberries and saffron (if using) in an even layer over the carrots in the pot, followed by pumpkin. Top with farro, arranging it in an even layer. Pouring boiling water over the farro carefully, taking care not to disturb the layer. Add ¾ tablespoon of salt and bring to a simmer. Cover with lid, bring the heat back to low and cook undisturbed for 30 minutes.

4. Open the lid, place kitchen towel over the pot and place the lid on top of it. Turn off the heat and leave pilaf undisturbed for 15 more minutes. Gently toss to mix the layers and serve hot.

CREAMY PUMPKIN FETTUCINE

ELIZABETH CECIL

"From Feeding a Family: A Real-Life Plan for Making Dinner Work" by Sarah Waldman, © 2016 by Sarah Waldman.

RECIPE:

-½ pound dried fettuccine
-½ pound dried spinach fettuccine
5 ounces grated Parmesan cheese, plus more for serving
3 tablespoons heavy cream
-1 large egg
-¾ cup puréed cooked or canned pumpkin (or any winter squash)
-1 teaspoon arrowroot powder

or cornstarch
-3 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil, plus more for serving
-½ teaspoon freshly grated lemon zest
-Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper
-Pumpkin Seed Pesto (recipe follows)

1. Bring a big pot of salted water to boil over high heat. When the water comes to a rolling boil, cook the pastas together per the package instructions, shaving 1 minute off the suggested cooking time. Just before draining the [tab]pasta, scoop ½-cup of hot pasta water from the pot and reserve it for the sauce. Drain the pasta and set it aside.

2. While the pasta cooks, whisk together the Parmesan cheese, cream, egg, puréed pumpkin, arrowroot powder, olive oil, and lemon zest in a medium bowl. Whisk in the reserved pasta water. Season the sauce with salt and pepper.

3. Return your pasta pot to medium-high heat and pour in the sauce. Bring the pumpkin sauce to a boil, then turn down the heat to a simmer. Cook the sauce for 2 to 3 minutes, just until it has thickened, then add the pasta to the pot. Toss the pasta and sauce together and serve it with dollops of Pumpkin Seed Pesto.

Pumpkin Seed Pesto:

-1 cup toasted pumpkin seeds
-1½ cups baby spinach
-Zest and juice of 1 lemon
-1 garlic clove
-½ teaspoon kosher salt
-¼ cup extra virgin olive oil

Whizz everything together in a food processor. Extra can be stored in an airtight glass jar in the refrigerator for up to 1 week.

PUMPKIN PANCAKES

© 2016 BY MALIKA AMEEN

From "Sweet Sugar, Sultry Spice by Malika Ameen," © 2016 by Malika Ameen. Reprinted by arrangement with Roost Books, an imprint of Shambhala Publications, Inc. Boulder, CO.

It's Saturday morning. The kids are anxiously awaiting their morning cartoons; you have a fresh pot of coffee perking on the counter. The only thing missing is the Saturday morning breakfast. Insert perfect pumpkin pancakes (here) or rather on your breakfast table. Serve with warm maple syrup and sliced bananas to make this a picture-perfect Saturday morning. Serves four.

RECIPE:

-1 cup all-purpose flour
-¾ cup whole wheat flour
-2 tablespoons granulated sugar
-1½ teaspoons baking powder
-½ teaspoon baking soda
-1 teaspoon ground Vietnamese cinnamon
-¾ teaspoon ground ginger
-¼ teaspoon ground cloves
-¼ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
-¼ teaspoon kosher salt
-1½ cups buttermilk, at room temperature, divided

-2 large eggs, at room temperature, lightly beaten
-4 tablespoons (2 ounces) unsalted butter, melted
-2 teaspoons vanilla extract
-¾ cup pure canned pumpkin

Preheat the oven to 250 degrees. In a large bowl, whisk together the all-purpose flour, whole wheat flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, ginger, cloves, nutmeg and salt. In a medium bowl, whisk together 1 cup of the buttermilk and the eggs, butter and vanilla. Add the buttermilk mixture to the flour mixture and whisk until barely combined. In another medium bowl, whisk together the pumpkin and the remaining ¾ cup of buttermilk. Using a rubber spatula, gently fold the pumpkin mixture into the batter. Heat a skillet over medium-high heat. Lightly grease the skillet and cook the pancakes in batches. Spoon about ¼ cup batter onto the pan per pancake. Cook until golden brown on the bottom and slightly dry looking and bubbly on the top, 2 to 3 minutes. Use a metal spatula to flip each pancake and cook on the second side until cooked through, about 1 minute. Transfer pancakes from the skillet to a baking tray, cover with aluminum foil, and keep warm in the oven while you cook more.

Much has been made about the poor start for Florida State, and yeah, it's bad. But Louisville hasn't been much better. Last week the Cardinals were stomped by Virginia, only putting up three points. In a battle of two programs headed in the wrong direction, the Seminoles still have the more talented roster. — Matt Burke

Ranking the top teams in the NFL ahead of Week 4.

LUKE MILLER
letters@metro.us

1. Los Angeles Rams (3-0) Def. LA Chargers 35-23. Last Week: 1
The Rams' defense has (rightfully) gotten much of the praise so far this season, but it was the offense that outgunned their crosstown rivals in the first all-LA game in decades. The Rams finished with 521 yards of offense and continued to live up to their off-season hype. They look like the least vulnerable team in the NFL right now, but face a big test against the Vikings on Thursday.

2. Kansas City Chiefs (3-0) Def. San Francisco 38-27. Last Week: 3
Patrick Mahomes' dream season continued with three touchdown passes. The quarterback has now thrown 13 scores and been intercepted zero times in 2018. Running back Kareem Hunt, who stole the rookie spotlight a season ago while Mahomes sat behind Alex Smith, got his first scores on the ground early against San Francisco. The Chiefs have a chance to get an early two-game lead in the division next week against the Broncos.

3. Philadelphia Eagles (2-1) Def. Indianapolis 20-16. Last Week: 6
Carson Wentz's first game back showed a little rust, but zero cause for concern over the quarterback's ability or willingness to move on his healed knee. Sunday was vintage Wentz, escaping pressure and scrambling for first downs. If the Eagles want him to stay that way, they'd do well to protect him better. Despite his elusiveness, Wentz was sacked five times in his 2018 debut.

4. New Orleans Saints (2-1) Def. Atlanta 43-37 (OT.) Last Week: 10
Is it too hyperbolic to call this Drew Brees' best game? There's a long list to go through,

Jonathan Jones tries to pull down Golden Tate Sunday night in Detroit. GETTY IMAGES

but the Saints' quarterback finished with 396 yards through the air and five touchdowns. Two of his scores, including the game-tying one, came on the ground. The Saints have one more game to get through without Mark Ingram, but Alvin Kamara has been up to carrying the full load in Ingram's absence: He had 31 touches for 190 yards Sunday.

5. Jacksonville Jaguars (2-1) Lost to Tennessee 9-6. Last Week: 2
The defending division champions still can't figure out a way to get past Tennessee. This time the Jaguars definitely missed Leonard Fournette, as T.J. Yeldon was held to 44 yards as the team's leading rusher. The Jacksonville offense desperately needs to get more consistent. A week after the best game of his career, Blake Bortles finished with 155 passing yards on 34 attempts.

6. Tampa Bay Buccaneers (2-1) Lost to Pittsburgh 30-27. Last Week: 4
The Steelers got to Ryan Fitzpatrick in the first half and it looked like the end of the Fitzmagic era before a late rally gave him his third 400-yard passing game in as many outings. The Bucs are still relying almost exclusively on their passing attack on offense, though in this game a 30-10 halftime deficit may have necessitated as much. Now the story line becomes whether Fitzpatrick will continue in his role as the starter as Jameis Winston returns from his suspension.

7. Carolina Panthers (2-1) Def. Cincinnati 31-21. Last Week: 11
The Panthers went back to their calling card Sunday against the Bengals. Christian McCaffrey had a career-high 184 of their 230 rushing yards and the defense intercepted Andy Dalton four times. That's the same number of touchdowns Cam Newton accounted for for the Panthers. They'll be among the first of the teams to enjoy a bye week in Week 4.

8. Miami Dolphins (3-0) Def. Oakland 28-20. Last Week: 16
Albert Wilson threw a 52-yard touchdown pass to open the fourth quarter, and then followed it up by catching a 74-yard score from Ryan Tannehill. Tannehill's near-perfect quarterback rating on the day (155.3) was nevertheless beaten by his receiver's perfect 158.3. The Dolphins are rolling now, and they face the reeling Patriots next. If there was ever a time to break a streak of nine straight losses in New England, this is it.

9. Pittsburgh Steelers (1-1-1) Def. Tampa Bay 30-27. Last Week: 12
Vance McDonald was the latest recipient of the passing attack that has seen Ben Roethlisberger throw for 1140 yards in the first three games. After a Week 1 outing with five turnovers and a Week 2 game where the defense allowed six passing touchdowns, the Steelers finally put both sides of the ball together Monday night...for at least a half. They were outscored in the second half 17-0 despite hanging on for the win.

10. New England Patriots (1-2) Lost to Detroit 26-10. Last Week: 7
It was one thing to watch the Jaguars' defense shut down an attrition-weary Patriots team in Jacksonville. It was quite another to watch New England only manage to break the 200-yard mark in the closing minutes Sunday night against the team that allowed Sam Darnold's Jets 47 points two weeks ago. After terrorizing the NFL with the deep ball a season ago, the Patriots' longest play Sunday was 19 yards.

11. Atlanta Falcons (1-2) Lost to New Orleans 43-37 (OT.) Last Week: 8
Calvin Ridley is ignoring any learning curve for rookie wide receivers: He has 210 yards and four touchdowns in his first three games, and 146 yards and three of those scores came Sunday against the Saints. The Falcons' under-siege defense needs to figure things out before they face the Bengals this week.

CITATION GIVING NOTICE OF PETITION FOR APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN FOR INCAPACITATED PERSON PURSUANT TO

G.L. c. 190B, §5-304

Docket No. SU18P1919GD

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

The Trial Court

Probate and Family Court

In the matter of: Stanley Moy

OF: Dorchester, MA

RESPONDENT Alleged Incapacitated Person

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, a petition has been filed by Department of Developmental Services of Boston, MA in the above captioned matter alleging that Stanley Moy is in need of a Guardian and requesting that Reverend John R Odams of Dorchester, MA (or some other suitable person) be appointed as Guardian to serve on the bond.

Suffolk Probate and Family Court
24 New Chardon Street, Boston, MA 02114

The petition asks the court to determine that the Respondent is incapacitated, that the appointment of a Guardian is necessary, and that the proposed Guardian is appropriate. The petition is on file with this court and may contain a request for certain specific authority.

You have the right to object to this proceeding. If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 A.M. on the return date of 10/11/2018. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

WITNESS, Hon. Brian J. Dunn, First Justice of this Court.

Date: September 10, 2018

Aries Don't get bogged down with trivial matters. If someone is being a stickler, you are best off going it alone. Working toward something you feel passionate about will pay off.

Taurus If you change how you present yourself or do things, it will affect how others respond to you. Attend conferences and networking functions and progress will be made.

Gemini You're on a roll, and much can be accomplished. Use your intelligence to outsmart anyone who challenges you. Your keen sense of justice and fair play will drum up support.

Cancer Mingle, expand your interests and approach people eager to share information with you. What you find out will lead to a potential professional or personal partnership.

Leo Look at the plus sides of situations, but recognize the down sides. Cut your costs and lower your debt. Treat others fairly, but know when to walk away from a bad situation.

Virgo Stop thinking about what you want to do and start doing it. It's up to you to make things happen and to be ready to take advantage of any opportunity that comes your way.

Libra Take care of domestic issues swiftly, before they become too burdensome. Have a plan in mind that will involve people who bring out the best in you.

Scorpio Scout out the online job market to see what's available. Exploring your options will motivate you to formulate a long-term plan. Discuss your intentions with someone you love.

Sagittarius You have plenty to offer. Don't let someone damage your ego or make you feel worthless. Streamline your energy and make better use of your skills.

Capricorn You'll be torn between the changes you want to make and the ones available to you. Consider how you can diversify your skills and utilize your knowledge and attributes differently.

Aquarius Find a practical way to use your money, time and talents. Don't let anyone convince you to take on too much or overspend on something that isn't profitable.

Pisces Use your imagination to come up with unique ways to take care of matters concerning institutions, government agencies or pending settlements. Where there's a will, there's a way. EUGENIA LAST
